SANTA FE INDEPENDENT 2009 FILM FESTIVAL

Santa Fe Independent Film Festival has grown again.

This year's festival will include films from Budapest, Iraq, Montreal, Ontario, Vancouver, Colorado, New York, New Mexico and around the world.

We have added two more hours of screenings at Warehouse 21 on Friday, December 4th beginning at 5 p.m. until 10:00 p.m..

We have added Sunday to the programming at the Santa Fe Complex at 632 Agua Fria and the new home of the Santa Fe Independent Film Fest where we will screen films year round for a suggested donation of six bucks.

DJ Dynamite Sol will host a Private Party at Chuck Jones Gallery Saturday from 8 p.m.on.

Santa Fe Independent Film Festival will premier a teaser for Norman Patrick Brown's upcoming film, "The Rainbow Boy" (Navajo with English subtitles).

Check out our new website at santafeindependentfilmfestival.com for up-to-date info on films and schedule. New films are being added to the program daily.

Tickets are $6.00 (six dollars) per day and $10 (ten dollars) for an all-access festival pass, and are available in advance from The Station Coffeehouse, trackside at the Santa Fe Depot, from Warehouse 21, SF Complex, or by calling David Moore at #505-795-8480.

Tentative schedule of films and events is attached.
